The Fresco

The Fresco was inspired by wooden antique recoveries from an ancient city of the Roman Empire.

Located in the shadow of Mount Vesuvius, few people realize that on the day Mount Vesuvius erupted in 79 A.D., it destroyed another city as well: Herculaneum.

Through the ages, the ruins of this once prosperous city have been remarkably well-preserved.

Unlike Pompeii, the deep pyroclastic material and special conditions of the ground humidity carbonized wooden frameworks of houses, wooden furniture, partitions and doors.

Since Herculaneum was a wealthier town than Pompeii, it possessed an extraordinary density of fine houses with more lavish accents and the extensive use of colored marble cladding throughout the city.

We have incorporated the dimensional qualities of this artisan textured finish in our very own "Fresco" to offer a journey through time by reproducing the characteristics of aged, weathered wood.

This sculptural finish adds a dynamic sense of style to your home....an heirloom article that embodies the attributes of a one-of-a-kind, hand-painted, custom work of art.

The bold legs have been designed to symbolize the rugged supports used to create timeless foundations. The interlocking frame components exemplify the craftsmanship required to create heirloom furniture.

To complete the styling sought after by the world's top designers, we have incorporated modest metal elements to broaden the transitional appeal of this signature design.

It's time for you to start planning your very next "Great Gathering" to launch your own timeless memories with your very closest of family and friends.
